

LATIN AMERICAN STUDIES

CURRICULUM COMMITTEE:

Katherine Holt (History), Chair

Cynthia Palmer (Spanish)

Latin American Studies combines a multidisciplinary approach to Latin America and the Hispanic Caribbean, Spanish language study, and off-campus study to deepen participating students' knowledge of the area. Contributing courses are not restricted to the region's geographic limits but also include the experiences of diasporic communities as well as courses that provide a broader theoretical perspective to help students understand Latin Americans' diverse lived experiences.

This firm grounding in the history, cultures, and languages of Latin America will allow students from any major to bring a wider global perspective to their disciplinary projects.

Minor in Latin American Studies

Consists of six courses:

- One of the following courses: HIST 21500 or 21600
- SPAN 22400
- One elective taken from Latin American Studies courses in a department other than History or Spanish
- Three electives taken from Latin American Studies courses

Special Notes

- Overseas Study: Students must study abroad in an endorsed program in the region. This may be a summer, semester, or year-long program.
- Students may take either HIST 21500 or HIST 21600 as a foundational course, although students are encouraged to take both to further their knowledge of regional history.
- In general, courses from LAST endorsed programs analyzing regional issues will automatically count as elective credit towards the minor.
- No more than three off-campus courses can be counted toward the minor.
- Supervised internships, experiential learning opportunities, or research projects awarded credit during the off-campus study term may also be counted towards the LAST minor with approval.
- Students may count no more than one Spanish elective in English towards the minor.
- Only grades of C- or better are accepted for the minor.
