Where are the missing Friday Night Volleyball Games? Missing evening games lead some to question current leadership

as reported by Michael O. Propapanzarini.

In an official report released by Diane Lash, Chief Inspector of Sporting Event Schedules at the College of Morgan, it was revealed that there is no Friday Night Volleyball this week and it is likely there will not be any next week as well. "We were wrong, probably all wrong about the intelligence we had received as to the feasibility of Friday Night Volleyball over spring break" said Mrs. Lash to a crowded pressroom in W. R. Morgan Hall. Many in attendance fainted upon hearing this and had to be revived with a gentle kick to the rib cage by leather-jacketed thugs guarding the doors. One activist, AJ Malmon-Berg, said "Why? Why they do this!?" That seemed to capture the mood in the room quite succinctly, if ungrammatically.

As you recall, improved reliability of scheduling was one of the main justifications for the ouster of YFL Dean Fraga and MOP Jim Warner as head and lower backside of the Volleyball Consortium. This was in addition to his crimes against personal humility and alleged contacts with known AI Fabeta members, a rowdy band of terribly bad spellers. However, it was the reliability of scheduling that seemed to resonate with the Volleyball community. The release of this report on the heels of several Friday Night Volleyball cancellations in past months has shaken the loyalty of the volleyball faithful and highlights a pattern of missing events brought about by faulty intelligence. It is unclear how this will play out over the coming weeks but one thing is certain, there will be no volleyball this Friday night.

Her Highness of Intelligence Gathering and Other Nasty Business had this to say in response to Mrs. Lash's report, "The consensus in the intelligent community of which I am a member was that we would have volleyball throughout spring break. If it turns out that we will, in fact, not have volleyball, well, then it's some else's fault. Lets keep this in perspective by changing the subject - aren't we better off without YFL and his capricious edicts about inconsequential matters? I mean, who cares if we were wrong on 2 out of 3 of our complaints about YFL? We were right about what a megalomaniac nutcase he was and Lord knows he has certainly validated that little piece of intelligence."

YFL could not be reached for comment and was rumored to be digging a hole. However, the Minister of Propaganda was more than willing to comment, as always, and he said "Please send more cookies and beer! The happier we are here the longer we will stay away. Hey, don't let YFL see this, promise!?"
